

Shattered:
Vol. 6, No. 1, 2017

Contents

Letter from the Editors	1
Shattered Ethics: Abandoned Objects as Ethical Affordance Adam Lovasz	5
Shattered Encounters: From My Father's House (1947) to My Father's House (2008) Liat Steir-Livny	29
Utopian and Dystopian Homecomings in Olley Maruma's Coming Home and Shimmer Chinodya's Harvest of Thorns Tanaka Chidora and Sheunesu Mandizvidza	52
Picking Up the Pieces: Embodied Theory in Bessie Head's A Question of Power Elinor Rooks	75
Shattered Masculinity and Violence in Walker Percy's Lancelot: Apocalypse Now Rachel Van Hofwegen Willis	98
Zahra: A Shattered Body and Voice from Lebanon Mireille Rebeiz	120
The Bondage and Subsequent Agency of Violet in Toni Morrison's Jazz Melanie A. Marotta	141

In Search of the “Telling Detail”: Ian McEwan, Briony Tallis, and the Demands of Authorship Matthew Duffus	166
Shattering Silence and Stereotypes: Rihanna’s Lyrical Reaction to Spectacular Violence Melinda Anne Mills	182
Betwixt and Between: How Male and Female Audiences Engaged with the “Magnetic Girl” to Complicate Fin-de-Siècle Gender Roles Elizabeth Lowry	204
Art in the Streets of a Shattered City Anne Kristiina Kurjenoja and Emilia Ismael	220

